

Special meet and greet with White House historian William Seale

A terrific evening was spent learning about another fantastic feature of our great city! Guests attended a fascinating conversation about The Blair House which acts as the Presidential guest house for powerful diplomats and political officials from around the world.

Held at The Mills Building rooftop terrace on a perfect evening with clear skies, guest had a clear view of The Blair House while William took attendees on a journey back into the historical archives of this jewel on Pennsylvania Avenue. With an impeccable sunset as a backdrop, his stories were expertly delivered with charm and wit that transported attendees through time as though they were witnessing the events first hand.

As the evening skies gave way to a picturesque full moon, guests enjoyed a wine and a sushi bar against the back drop of classical music. With an eclectic group of high-profile attorneys, diplomats, private investors, existing clients and new friends alike, all attendees were treated to a sublime, comfortable and delightful evening!
